The first annual Easter Seal Camp for Crippled Children opened on August 20th at Camp Algonquin on Burt Lake. The physical facilities of Camp Algonquin are being offered by Mr. and Mrs. Herb Twining following the regular season. Camp Algonquin is a well equipped boys' camp situated on the shore of Burt Lake and is open from June 20th to August 19th.

Some twelve teachers, nurses and counselors arrived in camp on Sunday, August 19th for pre-camp activities. They were briefed on the program by the Camp Director, Mary Shum and Ray Pawlowski, Field Director for the Michigan Society for Crippled Children and Adults.

Between 50 and 60 boys and girls are receiving special training and camping on a two week period. Camp is made financially possible by the Easter Seal Chapters in this northern twelve county area and from donations from various organizations and interested people.

Janet Rowland, Robert King and Bert Howe of Crawford County are attending. The $210.00 for their stay was from your Easter Seal donations and Camp Bowling project. Mrs. Vivian Peterson furnished transportation for the children.

We are sure these children are having a wonderful time and wish to thank everyone who gave to Easter Seals for making it possible for their free vacation for these three deserving children.

Michigan Builder Produces Home That Makes Its Own Mortgage Payment!

A brand-new home at practically no cost to the owner sounds like a very appealing idea with all the substance of a daydream. But State Homes, Inc., has turned the daydream into everyday reality by offering to build its new, two-family duplex on the owner's lot anywhere in Michigan. The rent from one unit will cover the entire monthly mortgage payment. The State Homes Plan is ideal for newlyweds, senior-citizens, vacation lot owners and everyone interested in a wise investment. The duplex home is completely paid for in twelve years; during that time the owner may live in one unit virtually rent free.

State Homes Duplex Ranch Homes are erected by experienced Detroit craftsmen with fine-quality materials and workmanship. Full price of $8700.00 for both units includes a Bryant gas heat system, lifetime finished aluminum siding, six-foot kitchen cabinet, concrete foundation walls, copper plumbing, Gold Bond 1/2" dry walls, Brings Beautyware bath, wear-stripped doors, and aluminum windows. All of the heavy construction and work requiring carpentry or mechanical skills has been completed. All that is left for the owner is to apply the finishing touches and decorating.

Floor plan of the Duplex features two roomy bedrooms, a comfortable living room, a spacious bath, handy kitchen-dining arrangement, two entrances, and a separate heating and electrical system for each unit as well as a large common utility room. Each living room has its own picture window and there are generously sized windows in all of the other rooms.

Down payment for the Duplex home is $50.00 and monthly payments are $87.00. Complete details of the State Homes Duplex plan are available at the office of the local State Homes dealer, C. R. Holcomb.

Business Needs Guideline . . .

There is continuing discussion, and continuing controversy, over the state of the relationship between business and the national Administration. Mr. Kennedy's attitude toward business was a matter of concern to business leaders during his campaign and at the time of his election. It reached a peak of crisis when he forced to withdraw the price increase, using, in the view of many, harsh and arbitrary methods which, it has been feared, could represent a precedent for future actions of a comparable character.

Since then, Mr. Kennedy has gone to some lengths in efforts to try to reassure the business community. At the same time, he has made it clear that he will not hesitate to use the powers of his office to control business when its actions oppose his policies. Thus, the business community is still wary, still uncertain. That is the state of affairs at a time when heavy capital investment is needed to spur a lagging, if not a dormant, economy.

The basic problem, from the business point of view, antedates the Kennedy Administration. Recently a British publication said, "In many respects the American economy is one of the most regulated economies in the free world." A publication of a leading American oil company, quoted this, observing: "And although we may consider this an astonishing appraisal of a country that has long been regarded as the citadel of competition and unshackled capitalism, it points up sharply the direction in which we are moving today."

The magazine went on to elaborate the point: "The truth is that the concept of competition is under attack, and that government regulation of business is growing. Businessmen are seriously concerned over the trend. Some 500 of them, meeting in New York City recently, wrestled a full day with the problems of how to operate a business competitively today without being indicted under one or more interpretations of the antitrust laws."

The word "interpretation" is the operative one in this connection. No one is foolish enough to object to prohibition of monopoly and price gouging. But there is no doubt that government lawyers concerned with antitrust law enforcement have, in specific instance after specific instance, attempted to carry the intent of these laws to extremes. Proof of that is found in the fact that numbers of government antitrust actions, including some outstandingly important ones, have lost in the courts and, on occasion, brought biting critical comment from federal judges. But, before the end is reached, years of litigation may go by, heavy cost in money and resources to the parties concerned. And newly proposed laws would give still more power to various enforcement ment and regulatory agencies. One for instance, would authorize the Federal Trade Commission to issue a "cease and desist" order to any company which, in its judgement, is following an "unfair competitive practice." This order would ban the practice until the matter was decided in court, no matter how long it took. So, in effect, this would place upon the company the burden of disproving the charge, rather than requiring the FTC to prove its case. That certainly seems to go squarely against the judicial principle that a person is deemed innocent until proven guilty.

What, then, does the businessman seek and need? The magazine states it this way: "What he needs most of all, in the face of mounting competition both at home and from abroad, are some clear and reasonably undeviating guidelines that encourage competitive performance. This would not be a boon merely to business, but to all America. For when the nation's businessmen can stop expending their energy on efforts to interpret the conflicting signals of their masters in government and instead devote their full talent to providing better goods and services at lower costs, the whole country will profit."

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bear were called to Carlisle, Pa., Sunday night by the death of his sister, Elizabeth Bear Heberlig, that night. Funeral services were planned for this Thursday. Our readers tell us that one of the prettiest curb gardens in town is that belonging to the Art Feldhausers on Cedar street. There are daisies, petunias, pinks, glads and zinnias all blooming like mad. The Pure Oil station petunias and sweet alyssum have received much favorable comment, too. In fact, all the business places along Cedar street that have flowering borders are so pretty and cheerful it is unfair to say less than that they are all a continuing welcome to all who see them.

Junior College Numbers Increase Sharply Throughout Country

COMMUNITY OR JUNIOR colleges have been sharply increasing in number throughout the country, but Michigan Education Association officials report many people do not know the purpose or function of the institutions. Generally the junior colleges, interchangeably called community colleges, are operated by municipalities, school districts, special junior college districts, or as off-campus branches of four-year colleges or universities.

The offering at such an institution is a post-high school education, usually in a two-year program of a terminal nature, or as preparation for further study at a four-year college or university.

Students at a typical junior college will include high school graduates who want two, rather than four, years of education; those eventually bound for a four-year college; housewives interested in homemaking, child care, general education, or preparation for re-employment.

Others will be workers who want to improve their skills, prepare for advancement, gain vocational experience, or expand their general education. Also studying at such institutions will be young adults who did not graduate from high school or study part time to earn a college diploma; or senior citizens seeking new interests.

Advantages of a junior college, both from the standpoint of location and cost, are many, according to George F. Hancin, public relations director for the Michigan Education Association.

These include allowing a transition from secondary school to college, eliminating the emotional strain of leaving family and friends; lower costs of education; and good choice of courses for persons who want to enter one of the technical occupations.

Junior colleges also are attractive institutions for "late bloomers," Hancin said. These students with college-level abilities but low high school grades can prove themselves by doing well in a junior college and thereby win acceptance to a senior college.

Hancin said counseling facilities are usually more adequate than in senior colleges also. This is generally true because faculty members at junior colleges usually are more readily available for counsel and advice.

"LET THE BUYER BEWARE" This rule of old was never more true than in the modern world, according to Atty. Gen. Frank J. Kelley.

A division of Kelley's office, the Consumer Protection Division, was formed about two years ago to warn consumers about irregular or fraudulent business practices being perpetrated in Michigan.

One of the most recent practices brought to the division's attention involves what officials have termed "the shell game" as applied to houses.

"Nothing done, nothing to pay until October," marks an oft-used sales gimmick in many fields today. To the Consumer Protection Division, this sales pitch is a warning in itself.

In the housing sales field, the tactic is particularly widespread when dealing with purchases of shell houses. The shell houses generally have a finished exterior or but unfinished or semi-finished interior.

"Many buyers of this increasingly popular type of home have found that the last, or sudden death payment, suddenly goes to the seller. The buyers are left with a house that is not worth the price they paid."

The "highways of tomorrow" can be even better and safer if we determine to make them so with across-the-board action program. Hancin said.
